CIVIL DISOBEDIENCE

Elsewhere, in Spain protestors for Catalanian independence continue to hold massive demonstrations in public spaces, with over 500,000 people from both sides marching in Barcelona over the weekend. In Haiti, the late Thursday killing of a journalist who had closely covered the impoverished nation's political and economic crisis sparked days of violent protests. The country's government is said to be on the brink of collapse, as calls for President Jovenel Moise to resign become deafening. GETTY IMAGES

Anti-government demonstrators swarm a military vehicle as they protest against cost of living increases on October 20, 2019 in Santiago, Chile. President Sebastian Piñera suspended the 3.5% subway fare hike and declared the state of emergency for the first time since the return of democracy in 1990. Protests had begun on Friday and developed into looting and arson, generating chaos in Santiago, Valparaiso and a dozen of other cities. For more, see page 6.

3 London

Anti-Brexit protesters take part in 'Together for the Final Say' rally on October 19, 2019, in London, UK. A few days before Brexit becomes a reality, one of the biggest public protests in British history took place in London. More than a million people participated in mass outside parliament to deliver a message loud and clear to the government and MPs that they should trust the people, not Boris Johnson, to solve the Brexit crisis. At the Parliament Square, speeches were given from leading cross-party politicians and celebrity voices who support a People's Vote. For more, see page 4.

Kurdish activists and supporters take part during a demonstration against the ongoing Turkish military operation in northeastern Syria on October 19, 2019 in Amsterdam, Netherlands.

The Dutch Kurdish community demonstrated in the streets of Amsterdam to protest against the offensive launched by the army of Turkey in the region of Rojava, a Syrian Kurdistan region, the last bulwark against ISIS. For more, see page 6.

U.K. Prime Minister Boris Johnson has helmed Brexit negotiations.

REUTERS

And the saga continues....

The British government insisted on Sunday the country will leave the European Union on Oct. 31 despite a letter that Prime Minister Boris Johnson was forced by parliament to send to the bloc requesting a Brexit delay.

The Brexit maelstrom has spun wildly in the past week between the possibility of an orderly exit on Oct. 31 with a deal that Johnson struck on Thursday and a delay after he was forced to ask for an extension late on Saturday.

Johnson's defeat in the British parliament over the sequencing of the ratification of his deal exposed the prime minister to a law passed by those opposed to a no deal departure, demanding he request a delay until Jan. 31.

Johnson sent the request note as required, but unsigned, and added another signed letter arguing against what he cast as a deeply corrosive delay. One of his most senior ministers said Britain would still leave the bloc on Oct. 31.

"We are going to leave by October 31. We have the means and the ability to do so," Michael Gove, the minister in charge of no-deal Brexit preparations, told Sky News.

"That letter was sent because parliament required it to be sent ... but parliament can't change the prime minister's mind, parliament can't change the government's policy or determination."

In yet another twist to the running Brexit drama,

Brexit will happen on Oct. 31 despite PM's unsigned delay request, UK says

Johnson sent three letters to Donald Tusk, the president of the European Council.

First, a brief cover note from Britain's EU envoy explaining that the government was simply complying with the law; second, an unsigned copy of the text that the law, known as the Benn Act, forced him to write; and a third letter in which Johnson said he did not want an extension.

"I have made clear since becoming Prime Minister and made clear to parliament again today, my view, and the Government's position, that a further extension would damage the interests of the UK and our EU partners, and the relationship between us," Johnson said in the third letter, signed "Boris Johnson."

The EU, which has grappled with the tortuous Brexit crisis since Britons voted 52%-48% to leave in a 2016 referendum, was clearly bewildered by the contradictory signals from London.

Tusk said he had received the request from Johnson and would start consulting EU leaders on how to react.

French President Emmanuel Macron told Johnson that Paris needed swift clarification on the situation after Saturday's vote, an official at the French presidency told Reuters.

"He (Macron) signaled a delay would be in no one's interest," the official said.

It was unlikely that the EU's 27 remaining member states would refuse Britain's request, given the impact on all parties of a no-deal Brexit. Diplomats said on Sunday the bloc would play for time rather than rush to decide, waiting to see how things developed in London.

Gove said the risk of no deal had increased and the government would step up preparations for it, including triggering its "Operation Yellowhammer" contingency plans.

"We cannot guarantee that the European Council will grant an extension," Gove said. REUTERS

September

Report to our riders.

We continue to build a better T. The work we are doing follows a long-range plan. And at the center of that plan is a commitment to a safe, reliable, and more accessible transit system. As work continues and progress is achieved, we will be providing monthly updates, like these, to explain how what you've experienced as a rider is creating a better system.

GREEN LINE

Flood protection, intersection upgrades, and track and signal work.

This September, we replaced over 2,300 feet of track and 20 miles of signal cable on the D Branch to ensure a comfortable, reliable Green Line. We replaced two intersections and a critical crossover near Beaconsfield Station to reduce slowdowns and delays, and improve access for pedestrians, cyclists, and drivers around the intersections. We also continued construction on important anti-flooding measures to protect the Green Line Fenway Portal tunnel from severe weather.

RED LINE

Track maintenance and replacement, and signal system recovery.

This September, we replaced 650 feet of track and 365 wooden rail ties, laid 300 tons of new crushed stone track ballast, and stockpiled more than 12,000 feet of new track and hundreds of track ties to support future maintenance. We also completed repairs to damaged signal control systems and brought the Red Line back to its scheduled service levels. So your trip is fast, smooth, reliable, and safe.

ORANGE LINE

Track replacement and preventive maintenance activities.

This September, we replaced over 3,100 feet of track, 40 concrete pads, and over 600 wooden rail ties. Crews also repaired water leaks in the tunnel walls and updated electrical systems. We are also rolling out multiple new, modernized Orange Line cars to the fleet. All of this helps make your trip faster, smoother, and safer.

BLUE LINE

Track maintenance and replacement.

We conducted important track maintenance work, including replacing hundreds of feet of old rail for a faster, more efficient Blue Line.

COMMUTER LINE

Safety improvements.

To further our goal of safe transportation, our crews worked on installing the Commuter Rail Positive Train Control system. We installed new signal systems, underground cable, and signal houses, as well as drilled rail for track circuitry. This will allow monitoring of Commuter Rail trains and manual control in emergency situations, increasing the safety of our passengers.

Kurdish-led forces say they have pulled out of Syria border town

Withdrawal is the result of U.S.-brokered ceasefire deal.

The Kurdish-led Syrian Democratic Forces (SDF) said on Sunday they had withdrawn from the border town of Ras al Ain under a U.S.-brokered ceasefire deal, but a spokesman for Turkish-backed Syrian rebels said the withdrawal was not yet complete.

Ras al Ain is one of two towns on the Turkish-Syrian border that have been the main targets of Turkey's offensive to push back Kurdish fighters and create a more than 30 km (about 20 miles) deep "safe zone" inside Syria.

Turkey paused the offensive on Thursday night for five days under a deal agreed between President Tayyip Erdogan and U.S. Vice President

A Turkey-backed Syrian rebel fighter walks near Ras al Ain, Syria.

Mike Pence. Erdogan has warned that Turkey will resume the assault when the deadline expires on Tuesday if the SDF had not pulled back from the safe zone area.

"We don't have any more fighters in the city," SDF spokesman Kino Gabriel said, referring to Ras al Ain. His comments came after Ankara said dozens of vehicles had entered and left Ras al Ain, which is largely surrounded by Turkish forces and their Syrian rebel allies, over the weekend.

Rebel spokesman Major Youssef Hamoud told Reuters that the SDF had "not yet completely" pulled out of Ras al Ain.

Turkey launched its offensive after President Donald Trump announced he was withdrawing U.S. troops from northeastern Syria. His move was criticized in Washington and elsewhere as a betrayal of Kurdish allies who had fought for years alongside U.S. troops against Islamic State.

Ankara is seeking to set up the zone as a buffer as it regards the YPG, the main component of the SDF, as a terrorist group because of its links to Kurdish insurgents in southeast Turkey. The YPG has been a close U.S. ally in the fight against the Islamic State.

The U.S. pullout has also created a vacuum that Russia, Syrian President Bashar al-Assad's most powerful backer, has looked to fill. Syrian and Russian forces, invited by Kurdish authorities, last week entered two border cities of Manbij and Kobani that had been vacated by U.S. troops.

Erdogan has backed rebels fighting to oust Assad in the eight-year Syrian conflict, but has said Turkey has no problem with Syrian government forces deploying near the border if the YPG militia are removed.

The issue of YPG withdrawal from Manbij and Kobani would be discussed by Erdogan and Russian President Vladimir Putin at a meeting in the Russian city of Sochi on Tuesday, Turkish Foreign Minister Mevlut Cavusoglu said on Sunday.

"We believe we can reach an agreement with them to work together in the future, just like we have before," Cavusoglu said. While Erdogan and Putin have close ties over defense and energy, Moscow has called the Turkish offensive into Syria "unacceptable" and said it should be limited.

Although the truce held for the first two days of the agreement, Turkey's defense ministry said on Sunday that a Turkish soldier was killed and another was wounded after a YPG attack with anti-tank and light arms hit a reconnaissance and surveillance mission in Tel Abyad, the other town seized by Turkey in its offensive.

It said Turkish forces had responded to the attack and said the YPG had committed 22 violations of the deal since it began.

At least three dead in fires amid Chilean riots, flights out of Santiago delayed

At least three people died in supermarket arson attacks in Chile's capital Santiago, and soldiers shot two people during an operation to detain looters, authorities said, as protests entered their second week and intensified after a state of emergency was announced.

There was transport deadlock in the city and chaos at the international airport, where flights into and out of Santiago were suspended or canceled as crew members and airport staff were unable to get to work, the city's governor said.

Santiago and other Chilean cities have been engulfed by several days of riots as protests over an increase in public transport costs prompted President Sebastian Pinera to reverse the move and declare a state of emergency.

Santiago governor Karla Rubilar said on Sunday that three people died a day earlier after a supermarket in the San Bernardo district to the south of the city was set on fire by demonstrators.

Chile's Interior Minister Andrés Chadwick said later that two people died in the supermarket, while one was in hospital with serious injuries.

Prosecutor Xavier Armendáriz said a fourth person died in another fire at a supermarket in Matucana, in the center of Santiago.

By mid-afternoon on Sunday, prosecutors said 1,462 people had been charged in connection with that day's protests, 614 of them in Santiago. That followed 179 arrests in Santiago on Saturday.

Chadwick said more than 240 were taken into custody for violating a 10 p.m. to 7 a.m. curfew for the capital that was announced on Saturday evening, the first since the end of the Augusto Pinochet dictatorship between 1973 and 1990.

The interior minister said he could not rule out extending the state of emergency declared for Santiago to Valparaíso, Bío Bío, Coquimbo and O'Higgins regions.

Flights operated by Chilean airlines LATAM and Sky Airline were suspended or delayed on Sunday morning. REUTERS

Dr. Neil deGrasse Tyson goes into the unknown

The famed scientist answers your questions and debunks Bigfoot in his new book, "Letters from an Astrophysicist."

patrick.king@metro.us

During turbulent times, it's a normal reaction to search for meaning in a world that seems to be acting irrationally. Some people turn to religion, others to science and some just shut down completely. Famed astrophysicist and host of the shows "Cosmos" and "Star Talk" Dr. Neil deGrasse Tyson has been someone that many have looked to for answers to these questions over the years and in his newest book, "Letters from an Astrophysicist," Dr. Tyson lets his readers into some of the most intriguing pieces of correspondence he's had with fans throughout the years, as well as three open letters, including a eulogy to his late father. I caught up with the famed scientist over the phone to talk about the book while he was at work at the Hayden Planetarium, where he is the director of the Rose Center for Earth and Space, to talk about the new book.

What was the inspiration behind pulling back the curtain and letting people see these intimate conversations that you have with people in your new book?

Yeah, you said it precisely correctly. I've pulled back the curtain and the conversations cover topics that people rarely hear me discuss publicly. So it really is a behind the scenes, sort of under the hood, what's going on when I interact with people one on one.... There's about a hundred letters in the book, 101 letters to be precise, about 10% of the letters are from people who follow religious tradition and then they learned science and encounter a conflict and are now trying to understand how to reconcile; or they're forever at odds and they're reaching for some type of answer. Which I find to be humbling because these are people steeped in traditions that are very meaningful in their lives.

And I felt that, were I to engage them, I should do so in a way where I have some...where I've developed a sufficient knowledge of where they're coming from. No one is suicidal in the book. Just people wondering, looking for meaning and purpose in life and wondering whether any perspective that derives from the universe could inform it. And this is what happens persistently throughout the book.

And so I'm intrigued that people feel so comfortable that they would just bring these elements to it. And I've thought about it and I realized that most people - I think this is true - most people have never met a scientist, much less been able to claim one as a friend. So their exposure to me may be their only occasion to share something in their life with a scientist and that's what they've done.

I collected a few hundred of those letters and the 101 in this book are a culling from that set. So each correspondence has some value to more than the person who has received the answer. Letters that are different here at the fitness topic, I don't need to include those in the book. They'd be happy with the Wiki page answer. And in fact, I had staff that would reply to such letters, you know, "How big the universe is" or "Why is it expanding," the sort of thing. So this was a book of Q+A where you come to learn about astrophysics. It's a book of questions from people who found themselves in a certain place in life where they saw, they needed, they wanted a perspective that only the scientists could give.

Have you noticed that some of these questions have directed your own personal research? What have you learned from some of these questions?

So my religious literacy, or my "spiritual literacy" is derived entirely because I've been asked questions of people who come from that [religious] background. So after whatever might be the lead questions, I get asked scientific questions about the universe, or what's going on with black holes. In many cases by the fifth or sixth question people begin to branch in to "What does science say about God?" or "Who created the Universe, if not God?" So that becomes bland. There are many people who use that line of questioning that come my way. Originally, I was just sort of counting those questions as, "Well that's not science."

But then I thought to myself, when someone comes to me with whatever effort, especially if it's a handwritten or composed letter, I open up more than just saying, "Well this is science, and that's not." Whether you're an educator and they're a curious person, whether or not they're formally a student, the contract is: I should know where they're coming from. And that responsibility is on my shoulders, not theirs. So if someone is a fundamental Christian and asks me a question, I should know what is driving their thoughts. Because if I don't I will not otherwise know how to reach them with ideas, with thoughts and perspectives. So over the years I developed a huge library of different tracks to see where people were coming from, how and why, what they're saying, what they're not saying, what upsets them, what brings joy to them.

That background that I built over the years gives me the confidence in the conversation that I take back to people when they ask questions. And the same is true for UFOs and other paranormal phenomena. So a lot of my library is comprised of books that catch me up on where all of these people are coming from. And if you're in the book, you will see, I give very real attention to people who, in some circles, would just be considered crazy. Right? Well not crazy, but delusional. One person said, "Could there really be a large hairy ape wandering the Pacific Northwest?" So, I said, it's not likely and here's why: The rate of which we're discovering large animals in the world has dropped precipitously now that every place on earth has been explored.

So it's just less likely. And I gave a few more arguments and he writes back and says, "Tyson, as a scientist, I would have thought [you] would have been much more open-minded about this." He got a little angry. If you looking for Bigfoot, then you're not only looking for Bigfoot because it's a large hairy ape. There's got to be at least two of them, and they reproduce, because it's a mammal, if it's hairy, so it's got to be at least two. So that doubles your chances. Then they might have babies. So that triples your chances and you're not just looking for one Bigfoot. So I'm giving people attention, but I also know where they're coming from.

There's a huge backdrop that I've acquired over the years. Mostly the form of self-driven homework that I've conducted so that I can start with where they are and then take them to a new place; rather than require that they come to where I'm standing.

Dr. Tyson appears tonight at the Chevalier Theater, Medford, MA.

Somewhere in the middle

Singer-songwriter Vérité sat down with Metro to give the scoop on her new album and inspirations.

MOLLY GIVEN
Molly.Given@metro.us

We have all heard stories of musicians who strive to maintain their individuality and ownership of their creativity. In the industry today, that is no easy feat, but yet, Brooklyn-based singer-songwriter Vérité has managed to do just that.

The songstress has consistently put out intoxicating tracks that push boundaries and speak from her soul while also avoiding the corruption and dictation of a major label. In addition to independence, the "Phase Me Out" singer has also managed to pen her sophomore album "New Skin" (out Oct. 25) and land a gig opening for the X Ambassadors North American tour in the same year.

Vérité sat down with Metro to discuss her inspirations and her dedication to individuality.

What does your writing process look like?

A general theme of what I write about is really blowing up these small moments that I experience and maybe other people experience and over-analyzing them to the point where they are a little unrecognizable. But I think definitely what always captures my interest is just the subtleties of existing. My process really depends on the situation or who I'm writing with. If I'm writing alone, I just kind of sit with me and the piano, if I'm writing in a session I normally go in with a little less expectations and a little more levity – I'm willing to experiment and throw things out there. If I'm writing with collaborators that I know really well it's also much different. I think writing with other people is just motivating in general.

You have said before that we're a culture addicted to the excitement of beginnings and the tragedy of endings and your album "New Skin" is somewhere in the middle. What did you mean by that?

I wrote the album while I was in a really strange place in my life. I think it was the first time in my life that things had become stable. My career had hit a point where it was sustainable and I had been in the same relationship for four and a half years. Not that things aren't exciting, it's just that things are so much different in the beginning when you're on a pink cloud and everything is new and shiny – that kind of experience of elation does fade. Then I feel like a lot of times you don't hear stories about people until they've broken and their career is massive or they get married or break up. This middle place is just somewhere I feel like I've existed my whole life. I wanted to kind of delve into the cycle of that and the beauty of it. Just being committed to something fully despite the ups and downs. Running my career the way I have has really forced me to redefine what I think of being successful and redefine [the] meaning in what I'm doing.

Are there any tracks from your new album that you're most excited to perform?

I think "Think of Me" is going to be a moment live, and I'm really excited to perform that for people. Also the title track "New Skin" and the opening of the set I also think is going to be a really great moment – I start it a cappella and it's very quiet, almost slightly uncomfortable. I think it will be fun to do.

You're a thriving independent artist – can you tell me a little more about Kobalt's AWAL program since you were the first signee?

It's been a really crazy experience kind of growing with AWAL as a company. [I'm] somebody who has always been on the fringe in the way that a major label deal didn't make sense to me. I wasn't really feeling excited to play the games that all that entails. But early in my career, I was having a lot of success and traction with streaming and was kind of building really steadily on my own. I think taking a partnership as I have with AWAL enables me to grow and have a stronger core team while maintaining my independence with my projects – which I think was the selling point. That has always been what is most important to me. I always need to know that I have the option to move forward when things don't work. I think that's such a pitfall of the traditional music industry – the idea that these companies have ownership of you and your music and can dictate whether or not you get to release music and move forward. Maintaining my independence is not only good for my sanity, but also for proving that it is a successful model.

A teenager from New Zealand has recently become the Young Wildlife Photographer of the Year thanks to an incredible shot of a squid taken at Lembeh Strait off North Sulawesi, Indonesia. New Sex Cream Works Like Magic for Older Men

Recent warnings on sex drugs leads to the creation of an amazing no pill option; key ingredients activate spencial sensation pathways, enhancing erections and triggering arousal

Daniel Watson
Medical News Today

BOSTON – The medical community now has a safer and more effective alternative to sex pills, which they can immediately start offering to male patients. It will not require a prescription.

The alternative, called Sensum+®, is an amazing new sex cream that activates a sensation pathway on the penis known as TRPA1.

When applied as directed, it leads to incredible arousal and much more satisfying erections.

It also promotes powerful climaxes and ultimately results in significant improvements in performance.

"Men can expect outstanding sexual improvements with regular use. The penis will become hyper sensitive, making them easily aroused and excitable" explains Dr. Henry Esber, the Boston based scientist who introduced Sensum+® to market.

"And that's because Sensum+® does what no other sex pill or drug has done before – it stimulates a special sensory pathway right below the skin, which leads to phenomenal sensation."

Overtime, constant exposure (especially if circumcised) leads to decreased penis sensitivity, which can cause problems with arousal and erection quality. There just isn't enough feeling to get excited."

"Diabetes, anti-depressants and normal aging also leads to desensitization, a can make the situation even worse."

"This is what makes Sensum+® so effective and why the clinical studies and clinical use studies have been so positive."

MISDIAGNOSIS LEADS TO UNEEDED PRESCRIPTIONS

After years of clinical research and testing, Dr. Esber and his team have discovered an incredible compound that triggers arousal while helping men achieve erections more easily.

This compound isn't a drug. It's the active ingredient in Sensum+®.

And according to users, it produces sensational results. Many men report remarkable improvements in sexual performance and overall satisfaction.

They are more sexually active than they've been in years with the average Sensum+® user over the age of 50.

Clinical studies show Sensum+®'s key ingredient activates the TRPA1 sensation pathway right below the skin of the penis.

According to research, many men adults and seniors who suffer sexually have lost sensation in their penis due to constant rubbing and exposure and health related issues such as diabetes, hernia surgery, use of some anti-depressants, multiple sclerosis, and other type of illnesses.

This desensitization often makes sex extremely challenging. Without a 100% feeling in the penis, its next to impossible to get truly aroused.

Worse, modern day sex drugs have absolutely no effect on sensation and are laden with side effects. They simply stimulate an erection by enhancing blood flow.

It's why most men are rarely satisfied after taking them and why Sensum+® users are always stocking up on more and couldn't be happier.

"We knew the science behind Sensum+® was there, but we never expected results like we're seeing. It's far exceeded our expectations" said a spokesperson for the company.

A STAGGERING 80% IMPROVEMENT IN SENSATIVITY

Researchers have conducted several clinical studies on Sensum+® and the results from the most recent are undoubtedly the most impressive.

A data analysis of three clinical surveys of 370 men showed that an amazing 80% of Sensum+® users experienced dramatic improvements while using the cream and as a result were aroused easier and a phenomenal boost in performance.

Additionally, 77.4% of men also reported much more satisfying climaxes, making sex for both them and their partners nearly 300% more satisfying.

"I have full feeling and sensitivity back in my penis. Everything feels better. My erections are harder, I'm more easily aroused, I can finally climax again. This stuff honestly works like magic in the bedroom. I couldn't be happier at 66!" raves one Sensum+® user.

HOW SENSUM +® WORKS

Sensum+® is a new sex cream for men that's to be applied twice a day for the first two weeks then just once every day after.

There are no harmful side effects for either the user or partner. It also does not require a prescription.

The active ingredient is an organic compound known as cinnamaldehyde with a patented combination of sexually rousing extracts.

Research shows that as men get older, they often lose sensitivity to the penis.

Although very subtle, this desensitization can significantly hinder sexual performance and lead to serious problems with becoming aroused and staying/getting hard.

The cinnamaldehyde in Sensum+® is one of the only known ingredients to activate a special sensation pathway on the penis called TRPA1. Once activated, it restores tremendous sensation to the penis, stimulating arousal and powerful erections.

NEW SEX CREAM MAY REPLACE POPULAR SEX PILLS: This new patented clinically proven arousal cream is now available nationwide.

This would explain why so many users are experiencing impressive results so quickly and why the distributors of Sensum+® offer their low cost cream with an amazing guarantee.

GUARANTEE DISCOUNTED SUPPLY TAKES RISK OFF CONSUMERS

A large percentage of men report life changing results with Sensum+®. That's why it is now being sold with an above-industry standard guarantee.

"We can only make this guarantee because we are 100% certain this cream works," says Esber.

"We want to take risk off the consumers. So besides offering massive discounts, we're also offering this guarantee, so they don't have to risk a cent."

Here's how it works: Use the cream exactly as directed and you must feel a significant improvement in sexual sensations. You must be more easily aroused with harder, longer lasting erections and be having the best sex you've had in years.

Otherwise, simply return the empty bottles. Then, the company will refund your money immediately.

HOW TO GET SENSUM +®

This is the official release of Sensum+®. As such, the company is offering a special discounted supply to any reader who calls within the next 48 hours.

A special hotline number and discounted pricing has been created for all Massachusetts residents. Discounts will be available starting today at 6:00AM and will automatically be applied to all callers.

Your Toll-Free Hotline number is 1-800-515-0388 and will only be open for the next 48 hours. Only a limited discounted supply of Sensum+® is currently available in your region.

Consumers who miss out on our current product inventory will have to wait until more becomes available and that could take weeks. The company advises not to wait. Call 1-800-515-0388 today.

Pats - Jets: 3 things to watch for

The undefeated Patriots invade New Jersey tonight to take on the Jets.

MATT BURKE
matthew.burke@metro.us

The Patriots will be facing a different Jets team than they saw a month ago, as New York has built its confidence back up with the return of star quarterback Sam Darnold.

The Jets are also expected to get their top defensive player back in linebacker C.J. Mosley.

Here are three things to look for Monday night (8:15 p.m., ESPN/WCVB 5):

Gase by Gase basis

Jets head coach Adam Gase orchestrated one of the biggest upsets of the 2018 season while he was still in Miami coaching the Dolphins. The Patriots went into Miami last December as nine-point favorites over their AFC East rivals but were upset when the Dolphins pulled off the "Miracle in Miami" return play that featured multiple laterals and ended in an improbable touchdown.

Gase's Dolphins also upset the Patriots the year prior at home as they picked off Tom Brady twice in a 27-20 victory, and Gase was in Denver for the brunt of the Peyton Manning era – in which the Broncos toppled the Pats multiple times.

In other words, Gase knows how to beat Bill Belichick.

Belichick holds Gase in high regard, too, as the Pats head coach this week called Gase "one of the best game planners" in the NFL.

Stopping Sam

Much has been made about Sam Darnold's excellent outing last Sunday against the Cowboys in which he threw for 338 yards and two touchdowns in a 24-22 New York victory.

But facing a Patriots defense that is second in the NFL in fewest passing yards allowed per game (161.0) and one coached by Belichick instead of Jason Garrett should prove to be much more difficult for the second-year QB.

Tom Brady will be looking to end his interception streak Monday in East Rutherford.

Before Darnold was diagnosed with mononucleosis this season, he played in the Jets' opening day loss to the Bills at home. Buffalo's defense, which is on par with the Patriots', held Darnold to just 175 yards of passing and New York was only able to manage 16 points on the day.

Darnold is often-times reckless with the football as he threw a whopping 15 interceptions in just 13 games last season (second in the NFL). The Cowboys defense also managed to pick him off last week.

Must imagine Devin McCourty is salivating over the possibility of adding to his league-leading interception total (4) tonight.

Back in the groove

Tom Brady threw for 334 yards in the Patriots' last game against the Giants, but it was far from a Brady-like outing. TB12 did not throw a touchdown pass and was intercepted, as he finished with an 88.9 passer rating.

Brady has now thrown interceptions in his last three games after not throwing a pick in the team's first three games of the year.

Brady needs to get back in the groove of things, even though he will be throwing to a depleted receiving corps (Josh Gordon has been ruled out for Monday night with knee and ankle issues).

The good news for Brady is that he will be facing a Gregg Williams defense, as the Pats QB has owned Williams over the years. Brady and the Pats are 9-2 all-time when facing a defense that has Williams on the staff.

Josh Gordon has been ruled out for tonight's game.

Brady denies taking a shot at Kraft

Cameo appearance by Brady in Netflix show has caused quite the stir.

MATT BURKE
matthew.burke@metro.us

The drama at the top of the Patriots organization took another strange turn this past weekend when Tom Brady had to answer questions about a controversial cameo appearance he made in a new Paul Rudd comedy series on Netflix.

In the "Living With Yourself" cameo, Brady is seen walking out of the "Top Happy Spa," which immediately had people thinking about Pats owner Robert Kraft — who was charged with misdemeanor solicitation of a prostitute at the Orchids of Asia day spa in Jupiter, Florida earlier this year.

In the brief scene, Brady is seen walking out of the spa, and asks Rudd's character, "First time?"

"Uh-huh. You?" Rudd responds.

"Sixth," Brady says while referencing his six Super Bowl titles.

Brady defended himself Saturday when speaking to reporters.

"That's not what that was about," Brady said, when asked if the scene was in reference to the Kraft incident. "I think that was taken out of context, just like you're taking it out of context and trying to make it a story for yourself, which has a negative connotation to it, which I don't appreciate."

"[The scene] was shot on a green screen," Brady continued. "It was agreed to years ago. It was written four years ago. Again, it's unfortunate that people would choose to think I would ever do something like that about Mr. Kraft. I think that's a very bad assessment of my relationship with him. I would never do that. I think everybody knows what our relationship is about. For 20 years, it's nothing but love and respect."

For the past few years, there have been various reports of friction between Brady and head coach Bill Belichick, but this is the first time anyone has insinuated any beef between the Pats' star quarterback and the franchise's owner.

Brady was reportedly upset that the Patriots were so quick to release receiver Antonio Brown when he was under intense fire last month and many speculated that it was Kraft's ultimate call to dump Brown.

Two days after Brown was released, the wide receiver made reference to Kraft's incident at the spa, citing alleged hypocrisy.

"Kraft got caught in the parlor," Brown tweeted on Sept. 22. "AB speculations fired. Different strokes different folks clearly." Brown deleted the tweet about an hour after initially posting.

Monday Night Football betting preview: Pats vs. Jets

Long-time football handicappers know that the undefeated Patriots are in an awkward schedule spot Monday night on the road against the Jets.

"New England is facing a divisional rival that has revenge on its mind. The Jets were humiliated in Foxboro back in Week 3 when extremely ill-equipped Luke Falk was their quarterback. (Sam Darnold is healthy again, and just led the Jets to an upset of Dallas last week.)

"New England is about to finish the softest part of its schedule and begin a much more challenging stretch. Can the Patriots avoid looking ahead to: vs. Cleveland, at Baltimore, at Philadelphia, vs. Dallas, at Houston, vs. Kansas City. Players and coaches will say the right things in interviews. Can they actually stay focused?

Pats/Jets is a classic "sandwich" game, but with really big pieces of bread (a long easy stretch followed by a long gauntlet).

Betting markets spent the week shuttling between pointspreads of 9.5 and 10 for the favored Pats. Sharps like the home underdog in an attractive situational spot when the key number of +10 is involved. But, the Patriots do draw support below that number because of their proven ability to dominate lesser teams. At pointspreads of more than a touchdown this season, New England won by 43, 16, 26, and 21 points.

This will be a heavily bet game in Las Vegas, and in legal jurisdictions across the Northeast. The line might stick in that very tight window between 9.5 and 10 unless the public comes in really hard on the favorite, or respected sharp syndicates get more aggressive with the potentially resurgent dog.

Other Notes

"Boston College (+4) played its best game of the season Saturday in a 45-24 rout of North Carolina State. Backup quarterback Dennis Grosel struggled in the air (6-15-0-103). That didn't matter because running backs A.J. Dillon (223 yards on 34 carries) and David Bailey (181 yards on 16 carries) dominated the day. B.C. backers got the money by 25 points, on a team that's now 5-2 against the spread (71 percent).

Saturday's victory was critical in terms of bowl eligibility. The Eagles are now 4-3 straight up, with road underdog spots at Clemson, Notre Dame and Pittsburgh still ahead. Boston College will have to beat Syracuse and Florida State, or spring a road shocker to reach six wins.

"In NHL action, the Bruins suffered overtime losses in the first two games in their well-publicized gauntlet. Both (vs. Tampa Bay Thursday as a -115 favorite, at Toronto Saturday as an even-money underdog) ended 4-3 for opponents.

Boston did a great job of forcing and exploiting power play opportunities. Four of its six goals came a man up. But, the Bruins were outscored 7-2 at even strength (with the extra opposing tally from a shootout).

Toronto and Boston square off again Tuesday at TD Garden. The Bruins visit St. Louis Saturday in a rematch of last season's Stanley Cup Final. JEFF FOGLE

Taurus A change someone makes may not sit well with you, but if you go about your business and do your own thing, you will feel satisfied with your accomplishments. Keep the peace.

Gemini If someone questions you, offer only what's necessary. Remain in control and protect yourself against theft. Be smart and equitable.

Cancer Share your stories, dreams and intentions with a loved one. The insight and thoughtfulness you get in return will help you bring your plans to the forefront. Romance is featured.

Leo Broaden your horizons, learn all you can, build your stamina and endurance, and prepare for inevitable changes. Don't be fooled by someone using temptation or manipulation to lead you astray.

Virgo Listen and learn. The information you pick up will help you mold your ideas and strengths into something beneficial. A positive change is heading your way. Romance is accentuated.

Libra You can dodge a bullet if you refrain from sharing your opinion. Listen, learn and choose your battles wisely. Don't waste time on a dead-end project; focus on what's new and exciting.

Scorpio Discuss your thoughts and feelings. It's important that the people you are dealing with know your plans if you want to get the support you need to be successful.

Sagittarius Insincerity is apparent when dealing with matters that concern money, settlements and expectations. Don't dismiss your intuition. If something doesn't seem right, ask questions. Stay in charge and avoid being manipulated.

Capricorn Don't start your day on the wrong foot. Put emotional negativity on the back burner and embrace the things that can bring you the rewards you desire. Choose love over discord.

Aquarius You can waste time arguing, or you can focus on making personal gains, expanding your interests and contributing to something worthwhile. Maintain a positive attitude.
